Description

kwantis is a consulting company born to help decision makers to invest with greater visibility. kwantis is supporting organisations to identify, evaluate and control future uncertainties in their business plans, in order to successfully negotiate financing.

In the renewable energy sector, kwantis contributed to draft the IEA - Renewable Energy Technology Deployment report on financial facilitation for renewables projects, aiming at reducing the gap between Renewable Energy Systems (RES) promoters and financing organizations. A key challenge then in obtaining financing at a reasonable cost is the ability to quantify and manage the different elements of risk (i.e. organizational, political, technical, commercial) associated with RES projects.

kwantis is involved in risk management and investment evaluations (Risk-based business planning) for challenging investment projects and R&D developments, in various sectors (energy and utilities, renewables, infrastructures, transportation, medical) and over four continents.

Based in Italy, kwantis is held and operated by French, Swiss and Italian nationals, and together with a team of highly skilled and adaptive consultants, have proven their capabilities to work on complex issues in international environments.
